Research Overview

My research focuses on AI safety and security, with a particular emphasis on trustworthy foundation models, including multimodal and reasoning models, and autonomous AI agents. Across my research and industry experience, I study how advanced models fail under realistic adversarial, privacy, and security threats, and how to build evaluations and safeguards that remain effective in deployment.

- AI Safety and Security: detecting real-world threats, jailbreak and privacy-risk analysis, mechanistic safety analysis, and risk mitigation for foundation models.
- Agent Safety: adaptive agent guardrails, agent interpretability, computer-use and coding-agent red-teaming, and real-world threat benchmarking.
- AI for Security Applications: vulnerability discovery, cybersecurity evaluation, and security-focused applications of foundation models and AI agents.
